

Matthew R. Pellish

Matthew Pellish is Director of Strategic Research and Member Education with the research programs of the Education Advisory Board. In this capacity Mr. Pellish is responsible for the communication and delivery of the programs' strategic and custom research.

Previously Mr. Pellish served in the Advisory Board's member services division, establishing foundational relationships with executive administration of new member institutions and responding to member priorities through front line service planning.

Prior to joining the Advisory Board Mr. Pellish's professional and educational endeavors were focused throughout higher education. Most recently Mr. Pellish served as Director of Continuing Education at Wheelock College in Boston, Massachusetts founding this new division with unique models for curriculum delivery, business and revenue generation, as well as marketing and student recruitment. At Cambridge College in Cambridge, Massachusetts Mr. Pellish served the education of non-traditional students through several divisions including Policy, Research, & Communications, International Programs, the Doctor of Education program, and as adjunct faculty in undergraduate programs. He has worked directly in executive administration as Executive Assistant to the President, Special Assistant for Board Relations, and Director of New Initiatives and Program Development.

Mr. Pellish received his undergraduate degree in English and political science from Saint Joseph's University in Philadelphia, PA. His master's degree is in education with a focus on higher education from Harvard University, Cambridge, MA, where he also worked in Student Affairs for the Office of the Dean of Harvard College.